

Teemu Arina: Bio and Notes for Booking

I give presentations, keynotes, participate in panels and run workshops (scenario, open space, unworkshop/unconference, hands-on etc.) on the following topics:

- Social media & technology
- Knowledge work & management
- learning & education
- ubiquitous computing
- open innovation
- future & complexity
- entrepreneurship
- ...and more

I want each of my presentations to be unique, inspirational and visually stunning. I can open up an avenue, facilitate a journey or bring loose strings together.

Typical bio

Teemu Arina is a sought out finnish speaker, writer and entrepreneur focusing on the future of social technologies in management, knowledge work and learning.

He works with enterprises, non-profits, startups and universities interested in implementing social technologies (web 2.0, social media etc.) and facilitating the required change in attitudes, working patterns and culture. As the CEO of Dicole Ltd. he has implemented, advised and led novel approaches regarding social media for organizations like Nokia, Finnish Broadcasting Company YLE, City of Helsinki, City of Espoo, Elisa, Tekes, Merck, M-Real and Tieto.

For more information, see his blog at tarina.blogging.fi.

Notes for booking

If you have an event and would like to have someone fire off some important synapses in your audience without boring them with endless bullet-points, please drop me an email at teemu\(AT\)dicole.comdicole.com) (replace (AT) with @) or call me, +358-50-555-7636.

- I prefer a lapel microphone.
- I tend to record my presentations and sometimes I make my work public. Please let me know if you don't want me to record the presentation or release any material.
- I might blog, record videos or take pictures at events I participate in. Let me know if you don't want me to use any names, organizations or confidential details in case I publish about my experiences. I do utilize common-sense, though.

- I usually bring my own computer (Macbook) to connect with a projector (I carry my own adapters). If that's not possible, let me know.
- I'm ready to travel to any country, but I expect to be paid all travel costs and a compensation for my efforts.
- I can also provide online presentations and have all the tools available to organize one.
- Advance copies of the presentation will not be available. I will provide presentation recordings and/or slides afterwards for internal use and may publicize material on my blog.

Here is a checklist of information/equipment you should provide me to make my life easier:

- Exact time and place (room name and/or number).
- Expected audience and size.
- What you expect from me as a speaker and possible topics to cover.
- Event/organization website.
- Name, phone number and email of program coordinator.
- Directions and/or transportation from hotel/airport to event.
- Advance information regarding a possible interview off-stage.
- A video projector that will project images through a VGA input.
- Internet connection at hotel room and on stage.
- Lapel microphone, if available.
- Power at the podium.
- Table/podium at chest level or a separate screen monitor, so I can see the screen of my own presentation when presenting would be preferable.